Food Assistance Resources

In normal times, the number of college students nationwide who experience food insecurity might be more than one would expect. Data from Affordable Colleges identifies this general number at 36%.* We know that during this difficult and unprecedented time, in the face of a global health crisis, this number may be significantly higher, and perhaps more of our own students experiencing food insecurity. Below is a list of local San Antonio nonprofits that provide food assistance and may be able to help in the coming days.
